Course Outcomes

- 1 AI is a decision input, not the decision — three modes (AI-as-input, AI-assisted, AI-as-decider) and the drift toward delegation that grows with better models
- 2 The cognitive offloading risk grounded in Kahneman's System 1 / System 2 — why better models suppress critique and the two countermeasures that keep reasoning engaged
- 3 Three override signals (context, recency, regional) and the deference trap that hides overrides — with the override-documentation discipline
- 4 The 80/20 verification rule with three filters (reversibility, stakes, context) and three categories that need 100% verification
- 5 Team-level decision norms that survive tool churn — categorisation, pre-commitment, override docs — with a 3-stage onboarding pattern
- 6 Scenario planning with AI without the false-confidence trap — the 4-step discipline that mixes AI breadth with your judgement
- 7 Three drift types (deference, verification, model) and the quarterly decision audit that catches them — with model-drift canonical-prompts check
- 8 A one-page AI decision charter + 4 trust trip-wires + interactive charter builder for the team
